IMPORTANT REAL ESTATE DEALS

Several Transfers Made This Week Which are Interesting to Local People. Valuable Lot of Land Purchased by William M. Wood

Several very important real estate transfers were recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in Lawrence during the past week. The valuable piece of land at the corner of Main and Chestnut streets, consisting of a lot 60 by 125 feet, has been purchased by William M. Wood from Charlotte H. and Kate A. Swift. ROUSING REPUBLICAN RALLY

Issues of Vital Interest to Voters Discussed by Able Speakers. Audience Large and Enthusiastic. Appeals Made for Support of Entire Ticket.

About three hundred and fifty voters assembled in the town hall last evening to hear the speakers secured by the Republican Town Committee to present the cause of their party and to urge the election of the entire Republican ticket at the election on next Tuesday. The rally was an enthusiastic one, the speakers having no trouble in holding their audience for nearly two hours in their discussions of national and state issues.

The rally was called to order at 8 o'clock by Hon. John N. Cole, chairman, who in complimentary terms introduced as the first speaker Hon. Frederick W. Dallinger of Cambridge.

Mr. Dallinger in opening his remarks stated that the time of the State election was drawing near and that he hoped the voters would realize the importance of casting their ballots for the entire and straight ticket. He said that this election was the preliminary gun for the presidential campaign in 1916, and the eyes of the country are focused on our State. Should this State go Democratic it would mean to the entire country that we endorsed the policy of President Wilson and what has been accomplished by him and his political associates. Mr. Dallinger then took up some of the national issues which have been of the most interest to the voters all over the country. He said that the extravagance of the Democrats has been almost unbelievable and that money was being spent lavishly. He then touched on the attitude of those in authority at Washington in regard to the system of log-rolling and patronage which has made the ad-

Shall the Tail Wag the Dog?

ANTI-SUFFRAGE NOTES

As this is the last appearance of the Anti-suffrage dog during the campaign, the following doggerel has been contributed.

Dear old Doggie, Good-bye.
We must part with a sigh
For you bravely have watched in this place.
To the Antis a joy,
To the Suffs a bad boy,
For you would wag your tail in their face.
Let us hope, even pray,
As we wait for the day
Which may bring to us sunshine or fog,
That the Antis will win,
That the Suffs will give in,
And the tail will not waggle the dog.

Mr. Voter

Remember that woman suffrage has produced no reform in social conditions; no laws to regulate woman or child labor; no improved corporation legislation; no prison reforms; no health reforms; no purification in politics; no increase in wages in any of the states that have granted it that has not been equalled or surpassed in Man Suffrage States.

Remember that women suffrage is only an experiment and we can not afford to undertake such an experiment under present conditions.

Remember that woman suffrage means suffrage for every woman and not only for your own female relatives friends and acquaintances.

Remember that the average woman is no better than the average man.

Remember that every Socialist and every Feminist is a Woman Suffragist.

Remember that the great majority of women do not want the ballot thrust upon them by the fantical minority!

Vote against Woman Suffrage!

Don't You Think

That the time-honored principle of the rule of the majority should hold in a matter so fundamental?

That the average woman,—your wife, sister, mother—is busy enough already with natural, congenial and necessa duties, and ought not to be loaded against her will, with political responsibilties?

That, for such leisure as she may have, there are abundant openings for useful activity,—social, charitable, religious—in which politics would be only a hindrance?

That it would be a foolish waste of energy to put women upon men's jobs,—two to do a work which one can do as well or better?

Don't be deceived. The suffragists are plausible, strenuous and energetic. Many of them are sincere. But your best way to help Massachusetts Womanhood is to vote against the amendment.

FOOTBALL

First Defeat of Season

Last Friday afternoon Punchard was defeated for the first time this season, by Pinkerton Academy, in a closely-contested game on the playstead. The visitors had a heavy team, while Punchard was unfortunately without the services of G. Brown and H. Larkin.

Punchard scored its only touchdown in the first period, when Lawson made a brilliant run of 65 yards on criss-cross trick play from Kendall, going around Pinkerton's left end. Noyes kicked the goal. The score at the end of the first period was Punchard 7, Pinkerton 0.

Pinkerton tied it up in the third period. Starting at their 45-yard line, Bell went through left tackle for 15 yards, and Cole reeled off 37 yards around left end, being downed on the 3-yard line. Greely was pushed through center for the touchdown and Cole kicked the goal from a very difficult angle.

Punchard looked like scoring early in the fourth period, Lawson making 20 yards on an end run. Pinkerton held, however, and Lawson punted. The visitors got the ball on their 40-yard line and by end runs succeeded in reaching Pinkerton's 25-yard line. A forward pass, Greely to Knight, enabled the latter to score, but Cole failed to kick the goal.

Allicon, Punchard's clever right end, was injured in the first period and was obliged to retire, while Henderson of the Pinkerton team sustained a broken wrist. For the visitors, Cole, King, and Bell were the stars, with Captain Lawson and Kendall excelling for Punchard.

The summary:

PINKERTON	PUNCHARD
Cassidy, le.	re. Allicon, Holt
Cross, lt.	rt. G. Abbot
Bell, lg.	rg. Watson
Campbell, c.	c. Noyes
Martin, rg.	lg. Riley, Boutwel

Greely, qb.	qb. W. Lawson
Cole (Capt.), lhb.	rhb. Kendall

Score: Pinkerton 13, Punchard 7. Touchdowns: Cole, Night, Lawson. Goals from touchdowns: Noyes, Cole. Referee, Boyce; umpire, De Newell; linesman, Dugan; field judge, McCarthy. Time, 10-minute periods.

The game scheduled for this afternoon between Punchard and the Lawrence High School has been cancelled. Punchard will play the Beverly Industrial School on the playstead at 3 o'clock this afternoon. Unfortunately, the team is crippled on account of scholarship conditions and a number of other causes. Harold Kendall, who came to school late in the season, has left school; H. Larkin, H. Allicon, Morrill and Brown will not play.

Stowe School Wins

The following account of the football game between the Stowe and Bradlee schools was handed in by a Stowe school correspondent. It shows how interestingly football games can be written up.

On the Stark Oval Sat. afternoon the Stowe School team defeated the Bradley School team by a score of twelve to six. There were a few star plays that was the tackleing of Zalla and the line plunging of Payne a funny thing happen when on a kick Matthews went to tackle Zalla the former fell in the brook, also when payne was going for a touchdown he was tackled by a fan who didn't want the locals to score a touch, the lineups were as follows:

Automobiles Smashed

Sunday afternoon, a bad automobile accident occurred on the Reading road in front of James O. Holt's house. The crash, as the autos came together was heard quite a distance away. Dr. Walter Burns of Lynn suffered a broken arm, a dislocated shoulder, a bad cut on the face, several teeth were knocked out, and was rendered unconscious. He was taken into Mr. Holt's house, and later removed to the Lawrence General hospital, where, it is reported, he is rapidly improving. The other car was driven by William Pearl of Boxford, and was coming from Reading. In turning to avoid another car, the machine crashed into Dr. Burns' car. All were injured to some extent.

Both cars were so badly smashed that they had to be left by the roadside. A part of the new road was damaged by the leaking of a gasoline tank.

The damaged cars were towed to Myerscough & Buchan's garage where they will require considerable overhauling before being put into commission again. The Dodge was a comparitively new car, having been run only a few hundred miles.

Why Railways Are Distressed

The official figures compiled by the Bureau of Railway Economics for the decade of 1905 to 1914 inclusive, make the reason for the financial distress of American railways very clear. They have been paying more for everything they buy while compelled to accept lower compensation for services rendered. Take the item of taxes, for example: The roads of the United States paid in 1905 only $63,474,679 in taxes, while in 1914 they paid $150,371,100. It is true that state and municipal taxes are higher generally, but they have not increased 136.9 per cent in a decade, on an average. The valuation of the railways has been largely increased for purposes of taxation.

The total operating expenses of railways increased 58.2 per cent between 1905 and 1914, or from $1,390,602, 152 to $2,200,313,159. Yet the net operating revenue increased but 22.4 per cent. Business has grown. There are more men employed. There are more and larger engines used. The car supply has increased greatly. But the gross operating revenue increased but 46.3, while the operating expenses increased 58.2 per cent. In 1905 the railways paid $839,944,680 in compensation to employees. In 1914 they paid $1,373,-422,472. Not only were there more men employed, but the average wage in practically every character of service increased. The average compensation of all employees in 1905 was $2.07. During the decade it increased to $2.53.

In spite of these and other increases, rates are lower.

Communication

To the Editor of the Townsman—

If you have space in this week's issue, will you be kind enough to print the enclosed? The great war has certainly modified the attitude toward women even in the most conservative countries—and the general opinion seems to be that the outcome is sure to be greater democracy, which will include the heroic women no less than the men.

Yours truly,
MARY P. SAWYER

"A NATION'S LOSS"

To the Editor of the Transcript:

The attitude of the women of Europe as I saw them during the first year of the world-war, has profoundly modified my opinion of woman suffrage. When the soldiers had gone to the front the women of the belligerent and armed-neutral countries quickly and matter-of-fact-ly stepped into the men's places and took up their work, in offices and workshops, in hotels and factories, behind the plough or at the desk of the journalist or the business manager. By the thousands they volunteered for government or military service, in postal and telegraph work, bicycle messenger corps, signalling stations, train and street-car service, and even as aviators, teamsters and drivers of motor-trucks and ambulances near the firing line. I saw eight thousand young Swiss women, trained nurses and medical students, mobilize in twenty-four hours with the Swiss army for field hospital and ambulance work. Many more thousands volunteered for work in the international bureaus, for the exchange of prisoners or the tracing of the "missing", or are carrying on the correspondence of "the interned" with their families at home (which must always be done indirectly through a third, neutral person). And everywhere, among representatives of all countries and all classes, the same spirit reigns, the spirit of strength, of courage and calm endurance, of practical good sense and executive ability, of moral elevation and spiritual beauty.

Perhaps I have been seeing European women at their noblest and best. But must I not believe that our own American women are potentially their equals? That, given the same emergency, the same opportunity, they will serve their country with like ability, courage and devotion?

It has all combined to make me feel that when a nation accepts the services and sacrifices of its women; the consecration to its welfare of their health and strength, their intelligence and skill, their labor and their property—such a nation should not be deaf to their counsels or indifferent to their judgment. It should consult them through the same channels that it consults their brothers. Seeing what its women can be and do, if the nation does not listen through the ballot to their voice in the interests of the common weal, surely it is that nation's loss!

But the loss to the nation is greater in a democracy than under autocratic or bureaucratic government, for in these latter States a different ideal obtains; male suffrage itself is limited and the influence of the ballot is for all comparatively slight. In a democracy, on the other hand, individualism is cultivated, the ballot counts for much, and should, according to the democratic theory, be representative of all the people in all classes of the community. If a test exists for the privilege of the ballot it should, then, be a test that is reasonably obtainable by all classes of the people, and wholly impartial. To bar out, on the sole ground of sex, a human being of proper age, fair intelligence and good character, able to meet all the tests required for male suffrage, capable of serving the country well in one position or another, both in peace and war—such arbitrary exclusion is a failure of representative democracy, and an actual loss to the nation itself, whether in its present hours of ease, or in those that may be before it of pain and anguish!

Henrietta Channing Dana Skinner
Cambridge, Oct. 25, 1915

Among the thousands of persons who witnessed the wonderful Suffrage parade of October 16, doubtless there were others besides the writer who were moved by its demonstration of the "power of an Idea."

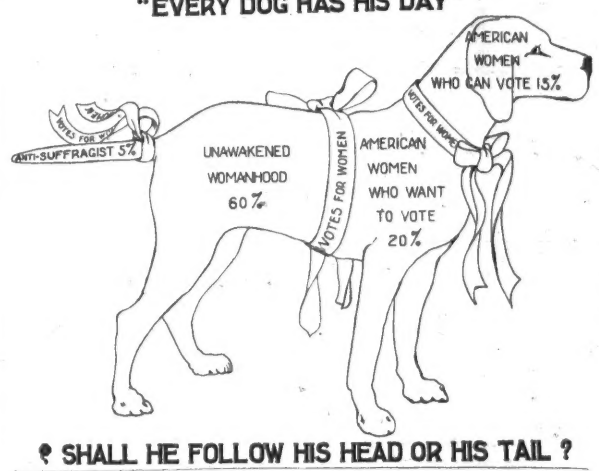

I recall a certain meeting held in Boston at the time of Lincoln's first nomination, when a few now venerated women discussed this still burning question. Small indeed was the list of those who braved calumny and insult to urge that they should share the responsibilities of the State.

And behold today sixteen thousand dignified workers in the cause still intent on the accomplishment of the honorable purpose. Their status as wives and mothers, sisters and homemakers remains dear to their hearts, but multitudes have been forced into public labor because the "Voter" in the family could not supply the needed support. They realize their necessity of his vote's extension to help them set aright the social wrongs that assail them.

No discouraging outcries can drown the sound of their footfalls, as the orderly procession passed into history and the "Idea" marches rapidly on.

A SUFFRAGE POINTER "EVERY DOG HAS HIS DAY"

? SHALL HE FOLLOW HIS HEAD OR HIS TAIL ?

Designed by REV. EDWIN A. RUMBALL
Drawn by P. F. GILBERT, 107 MAIN ST., ANDOVER, MASS.

EQUAL SUFFRAGE NOTES

Remarking that "Every dog has his day," a prominent clergyman sketched the Suffrage dog to supersede the well-known Anti-Suffrage animal with which we have become so familiar.

It is a trite saying that "figures cannot lie", for we all know that they are doing it constantly. The only figures of which we can be absolutely sure are the 15 per cent of women in the country who already have the right to vote. Every day more women, who were before indifferent, are being enrolled in the Suffrage ranks. Moreover, it is unfair to estimate the strength of Equal Suffrage by the comparatively few women who are active members of leagues, paying the annual fee. For example, in this town, while only fifty-eight women belong to the Equal Suffrage League, nearly 300 have signed cards signifying their belief in the cause.

A Consistent Anti to Her Son

You're twenty-one today, Willie,
And a danger lurks at the door,
I've known about it always,
But I never spoke before;
When you were only a baby
It seemed so very remote,
But you're twenty-one today, Willie,
And old enough to vote.

You must not go to the polls, Willie,
Never go to the polls,
They're dark and dreadful places
Where many lose their souls;
They smirch, degrade and coarsen,
Terrible things they do
To quiet, elderly women—
What would they do to you!

If you've a boyish fancy
For any measure or man,
Tell me, and I'll tell Father,
He'll vote for it, if he can.
He casts my vote and Louisa's,
And Sarah and dear Aunt Clo;
Wouldn't you let him vote for you?
Father, who loves you so?

I've guarded you always, Willie,
Body and soul from harm;
I'll guard your faith and honor,
Your innocence and charm
From the polls and their evil spirits,
Politics, rum and pelf;
Do you think I'd send my only son
Where I wouldn't go myself?

ALICE DUER MILLER

"They smirch, degrade and coarsen" reminds one of what Col. Irish is reported to have said: "Politics is degrading to women and makes them vulgar." Samuel J. Elder makes this comment: "How does he know? Does he mean to tell us that the women of his own State have been degraded and made vulgar? I pity his home-coming if that is his meaning."

New Jersey and Suffrage

On Tuesday two political machines in New Jersey combined forces to defeat the constitutional amendment permitting women to vote. There was no concealment of the purpose or the activity of the professional politicians; not the smallest effort was made to disguise the fact that every party member, Republican or Democratic, who was responsive to the lash or the word of the boss was "instructed" in his duty.

The machine vote was not the only vote cast against the amendment. It is open to some question whether it was the decisive fraction of the total vote. But what is interesting and instructive to note is that all that the political boss could do he did; that he recognized in the woman vote a peril; that he saw in the extension of the franchise a danger to himself, and he acted on this perception.

Thousands of men who do not believe women should vote expressed their conviction on their ballots. The question is one on which there is honest difference of opinion, and it is neither accurate nor fair to describe the opponents of suffrage as boss controlled or to insist that the result was merely machine made.

But the women have, in their New Jersey battle, successfully demonstrated that in the ranks of those who oppose them are all the elements which have in recent years earned and received the punishment which the community has felt the proper portion of the boss and the machinist, the ward heeler and the corruptionist.

A defeat such as that in New Jersey will not discourage. The very size of the vote cast for suffrage is an evidence of the popular support already enlisted. But a defeat with such foes is in itself a half victory. If the women of the country can continue to demonstrate that their cause is opposed by the professional politicians as a unit, if they can continue to show that it is the boss who fears most, that the boss fears and fights—then their battle will be won on the face of the evidence.—New York Tribune.

McDOUGALL'S MUSINGS

A Round-About Paper

The first copy of the enlarged Townsman pleases me, and the splendid reports of the various meetings show that there is talent amongst the "printer's devils". I have only to suggest that notices of births, marriages, and deaths should always be put on the same page of the paper. I merely suggest that under the church notices would be a good place for them, so that "Mistress Grundy" would see at a glance "who were dead and who were wed and who were brought to bed," and not be annoyed with a notice of a birth sometimes in one place and marriages and deaths scattered here and there. It does not matter much where they put McDougall. He is like Rob Roy when they told him that he would have to change his place as he was not sitting at the head of the table. "Wherever MacGregor sits, there is the head of the table", was Rob's reply.

A few of the latest items about the war might be interesting to people who do not get a daily paper.

The note about the drying of the 400 bales of flax fibre on the cricket field just gives me the chance to say that flax and tow cost just about double what they did before the war. Are the Democrats to blame for these war prices? Let me whisper in the ear of the learned Senator from the West who told them at the Home Market Club that the lowering of duties raised prices, that under the grand Payne-Aldrich tariff those 400 bales of flax fibre would have cost just $2000 more than under the present abominable tariff, and if of dressed line or hackled flax, these 400 bales would have cost just $6000 more. I merely mention this to give our rabid stand-pat friends something to think about.

Note well that I am not saying that the Republican Payne-Aldrich bill was not better for the flax trade than the present tariff, as when taking off the duties on what they called the raw material they also reduced the duties on yarns and twines made from flax. All I contend for is that lowering the tariff reduces the price.

Our local election in this sacred Republican town of Andover is in the hands of the voters and whatever pleases them pleases me. As to who is to be our next Governor—with four horses in the race, Walsh seems the best horse to bet on, as his party is not as yet divided. "We must just wait and see."

All the news about the war last week was in favor of Germany. The Boston Herald says that at this distance John Bull looks like either taking off his coat or putting it on. The whole muddle about Greece and her neighbors, and the resignation of Sir Edward Carson from the British Cabinet, will only give Mr. Asquith and his party a stronger hold on the thinking people of Great Britain. For the first time since war was declared, King George issues a proclamation calling upon the nation to defend its liberties from foreign bondage, and the effect of this proclamation has been to increase the fresh army of Kitchener.

This document from the king pleases me, only it has the word "my" too many times in it; otherwise it has the true Gladstonian ring.

I wonder why some of the Democrats who are being abused by the Republicans for the awful state of the navy do not tell these fire-eating Republicans that if the army and navy are in a bad way, the Democrats are not to blame as they have only been in power for the last three years, and that the army and navy are just as the Republicans left them.

"Oh, would some power the giftie gie us
To see ourselves as ithers see us."

Our Wonderful Postoffice

What impresses us most about the financial reports issued about the postoffice, with which we understand a Mr. Burleson has something to do, is their extreme clarity.

During the past year, for example, there were several millions of surplus in cash on hand, in spite of a deficit of $15,000,000 or $20,000,000 or $24,000,000 (we forget which); but we never were good at figures anyway. It is great news when, in spite of a deficit, you can still have a surplus.

Some time or other we may ask Mr. Burleson to let us know whether the expense of running the postoffice is greater than the receipts, or, not to be too blunt, whether the postoffice is run at a profit or a loss. This would include, of course, the item of how much rent the postoffice is paying, or ought to pay, and, in fact, just what should or should not, or is or is not, charged up to it.

We don't want to know this now. We couldn't stand too much accuracy on the part of any government official or too many figures. Enough is as good as a feast. When Mr. Burleson is able to produce a cash surplus out of a yearly deficit, that's enough for the present.—Life.

Herbert W. Ford, to whom the club is indebted in a great measure for the success of "Uncle Rube" last season, is not only coaching this play but taking the prominent part of Richard Carnes, the dishonest clerk of Abel Benton.

Do not miss the play.

This Is Democratic Prosperity!

The gross earnings on thirty railroads for the year ending June 30, 1915, were $82,046,128 less than the gross earnings on the same railroads for the year ending June 30, 1914. That is an enormous sum. Democrats are fond of talking about the great prosperity of the country but there is nothing in these figures to indicate any great degree of expanding business.

It is time for a change both in state and national administration. This fall is a good time, and Massachusetts is a good place, in which to begin the work to be wholly completed in November, 1916.

THE INCOME TAX

The citizens of the State will decide at the election November 2, whether or not to accept the amendment to the constitution providing for an income tax.

This is one of the most important questions submitted to the people of the State for years, but interest in it has been overshadowed by the "votes for women" issue. While there is some opposition to the passage of the income tax bill, no campaign has been waged, and the purpose of this article is to inform the citizens of the State and the readers of the Post just what they are voting on and what the reasons are for putting this question on the ballot.

Although the adoption of the income tax amendment will vitally affect the unopposed reform of the taxation system, now in its first stages, and therefore the pocketbooks of all the citizens, very little is generally known about the purpose of the amendment.

The question, together with the article of amendment as it will appear on the ballot at the State election is as follows:

"Shall the following proposed amendment to the Constitution relative to the taxation of incomes and the granting of reasonable exemptions be approved and ratified?

"Full power and authority are hereby given and granted to the general court to impose and levy a tax on income in the manner hereinafter provided. Such tax may be at different rates upon income derived from different classes of property, but shall be levied at a uniform rate throughout the commonwealth upon incomes derived from the same class of property. The general court may tax income not derived from property at a lower rate than income derived from property, and may grant reasonable exemptions and abatements. Any class of property the income from which is taxed under the provisions of this article may be exempted from the imposition and levying of proportional and reasonable assessments, rates and taxes as at present authorized by the Constitution. This article shall not be construed to limit the power of the general court to impose and levy reasonable duties and excises.

"And if said article shall appear to be approved by a majority of the persons voting thereon, it shall be deemed and taken to be ratified and adopted by the people."

In the first place the citizen who is concerned about the question would naturally inquire why such an amendment is necessary. And the answer is that for many years all efforts to bring about changes in the taxation system of this State, which is admittedly unfair, have run up against the stone wall of the Constitution.

For instance, in the last Legislature an attempt was made to pass a law taxing the income derived from property and exempting the taxation of the same property on its capital value. The imposition of both taxes would obviously have been unjust. The Supreme Court was asked for an opinion on the matter and replied that in its opinion the constitution did not permit the exemption from taxation of the capital value of property.

For years the State has been going on the theory that if a piece of property is worth say $100,000, and is assessed for this amount, that it should be taxed on this valuation. But in the next block a piece of property assessed for say half of that, or $50,000, may be paying twice the income of the piece of property assessed for $100,000, and yet the owner would be paying only half as much tax. It is, therefore, generally conceded today that the fairest form of taxation is on the income rather than the capital value of property.

In an effort to accomplish the result outlined without having recourse to a constitutional amendment the Supreme Court was also asked to say whether or not it would be possible to exempt from taxation some specified kinds of property if such property was duly registered and paid a registration fee. Again it was found that the constitution stood in the way.

It is a matter of common knowledge that the taxation laws of the State today are not uniformly enforced and that there is much unfairness. This is especially true in the taxation of various kinds of personal property. As the laws have been construed the poor man or the man with moderate means has no chance to escape his just share of taxation. He pays down to the last cent, but the rich man, with various sorts of personal property, often has been able successfully to evade the law. This condition obtains not alone in Massachusetts, but is common to the entire country.

The laws have not been enforced for various reasons; first, because of the laws affecting personal property, such as stocks, bonds and other forms of credit, and money. This kind of property can easily be concealed from the assessor and quite generally has been hidden, perhaps in the safety vault or under the mattress or perhaps in the teapot over the kitchen shelf, but always away from the prying eye of the assessor.

Perhaps in the nature of things there is some justification for concealing this class of personal property, since under the laws providing that the capital value of this property shall be taxed, should the assessors locate the bonds the tax imposed in the cities and towns of this State would take away from 30 to 60 per cent of the income which the securities bring to the owner.

As a result of this system there is every inducement for people to evade the law. There are cases on record where perjury has been committed. In other cases men have taken up a residence in the town which has the lowest tax rate, or which will have a low tax rate as a result of the removal of his property to within its borders. For instance, last year a very wealthy citizen who was a taxpayer in a community close to Boston, where the tax rate was about $15 on $1000, took up his bed and other personal property amounting to about $750,000, and moved to the little town of Orleans on the Cape. The tax rate in the town of Orleans was reduced to $3 immediately and the town was so prosperous that its citizens had to stay up late nights to think of ways of spending the money paid in taxes of the rich man.

The community near Boston in the meanwhile had hard work maintaining its schools. The rich man saved about $12 per $1000 on his taxation by removing to the small town.

It is because of these and other conditions that it has been found necessary to open up a way to the reformation of the taxation system through an amendment to the Constitution since the Supreme Court has repeatedly declared changes made by the Legislature to be unconstitutional.

The passage of the amendment will not mean that anything has been accomplished towards taxation reform. It will simply be the first step towards giving the Legislature constitutional power to separate property into different classes. It may give the Legislature the right to provide that some classes of property shall not be taxed on their capital value, but rather on their income.

With the shift of the basis of taxation from the capital value of the piece of property to the income gained upon it, the proponents of the amendment predict these among other results in explaining just what will be accomplished by the adoption of the amendment at the coming State election:

1—The farmers' tools and animals, as well as household furniture, might be put in one class and not taxed with relation to the amount they cost or could be purchased for, but rather on the amount of income they produce to the owner.

2—It would be possible for the Legislature to provide that shares of stocks in foreign corporations, bonds, mortgages upon real estate and other kinds of securities be exempted from taxation upon the value upon which they are bought or sold, and be taxed with reference to the income they yield.

3—It might be provided that incomes should be taxed alike in every town and city in the State, thus preventing men from moving from one place to another where expenses and taxes are lower, in order to escape taxation.

4—It is proposed that the power to enforce the laws be placed in the hands of the State rather than in the local authorities, and that it be made mandatory that sworn lists be filed by property owners.

The general argument used in favor of the passage of the amendment is that since it is generally admitted that the present taxation system is unjust, something must be done to give the Legislature an opportunity to amend the laws, and this appears to be the best method.

While there has been no public discussion of the merits of the proposition in a general way the opponents of the amendment say that it is doubtful if the Legislature is to be trusted with any more power than it now has in the matter of taxation; that the passage of the amendment may result in a heavier tax on real estate and that it may result in legislation relieving security holders from taxation.

It is maintained that in other States where similar legislation has been passed, real estate has not been more heavily taxed and that security holders as a class have paid more taxes than formerly.

In any case, the amendment seems likely to pass, since all of the candidates for Governor favor it, although none of them have given the referendum more than passing attention, except Governor Walsh. He has been keen on the passage of the amendment and now a taxation committee, appointed by the Governor and the Legislature, is holding hearings at the State House and preparing legislation to be submitted to the next General Court on the assumption that the amendment will be adopted at the State election.—Robert L. Norton in Boston Post, October 22.

SOCCER

Andover and Bunting Again Tie

Andover United and Bunting again finished one goal each in the first round of the State Cup game, played at Bunting Park last Saturday, before a large crowd. This was a replay of the game called the preceding Saturday on account of darkness. Throughout, the game was exciting, right up to cup tie form. The high wind made it almost impossible to play good football and continued play for the greater part of the contest to the one half of the field. Andover was unfortunate to be scored on in the last second of the first half after putting up a great fight in which time and again they managed by a clever passing combination to carry the ball near to the Bunting goal despite the strong wind blowing almost right down the field against them. They were never in scoring position though. It was the defensive playing of the two backs, Higginbotham and Jackson that was the outstanding feature, just as it was likewise the defensive game of Rishton and the two Smiths in the second half that stood out above the rest for Bunting.

In the second half Andover kept Bunting continually on the defensive and scored once, but they came very near applying the winning point on several occasions. Coleman, Renny and Black were the same trio of unbeatable halves, while Caldwell, playing at inside right, gave a wonderful exhibition both on the offensive and defensive. Gifford took a great deal of the defensive work on himself and was much the better of the halves on his side.

The game will be replayed at Andover tomorrow and should draw a large attendance, as with good weather these teams will put up another fast game.

Andover made the trip to Lowell in two motor barges, over fifty strong. The team took the field with a few changes in the lineup, but with only one new man on the team, Munroe in place of Kidd in goal. Bunting showed two changes over the previous game, Anderson replacing Carnathan at center and Costello taking the place of Greenhalge at outside left.

Bunting scored in the last minute of the first half, the strong wind taking Wallace's shot and carrying across the goal mouth. Munroe in endeavoring to clear sent the ball into the net..

Andover had the better of the play in the second half, but the defensive work of the Bunting backs and J. Smith alone prevented Andover from scoring. Renny equalized with a rocket shot from twenty-five yards out, the goal-keeper being unable to handle it cleanly. Andover repeatedly attacked, but the game ended one goal each.

The summary:

Andover—Munroe; Jackson, Higginbotham; Coleman, Renny, Black; Low, Caldwell, Cairnie, Dougherty, Lynch.

Bunting—J. Smith; A. Smith, Rishton; Gifford, Kelley, Lowe; Costello, Mitchell, Anderson, Taylor, Wallace.

The Editor's Thoughts on Equal Suffrage

I didn't raise my girl to be a voter,
A button-holing, wire-pulling maid;
A partner of the tipcart street orator,
Or yet a banner-bearer in parade.

She's not been trained to think that she's a ruler
In arts long held supreme in men's control;
She's not been trained to shoot, or fight, or even
Throw a ball, or kick a goal.

In ditches, she's a failure at the digging;
In banking, science, war, she does not fit.
She even runs an auto "like a woman",
In all that men attempt, she is not "it".

But say, you ought to see her in real action
As the daughter of her mother and her dad;
She's the light of every home that knows her,
When she spends her time in making others glad.

She's the greatest "little good cheer" in creation,
As she bares her hope and faith unto the light;
I rejoice to find her trust is placed in others,
With the basis fixed on love and not on might.

She looks upon the boys as big, strong brothers,
With their duties and their tasks a constant call;
Not like hers, and hers unlike all others,
Yet all for one, and, when together, one for all.

She knows the boys must take the harder bumping,
And the knocks that come to "men when in the mould";
They know the very manner of her training
Spins the thread of finer, purer, "nature's gold."

From boy to man and so from girl to woman
Both will grow, and come in time to full-sized task;
Thus trained in youth we need not fear the service
Each will render, and each likewise ask.

I didn't raise my girl to be a voter,
With sought for goal beneath the gilded dome.
I'd choose for her a cradle, not a caucus;
I'd rather see her "maker of a home."

Some Election Thoughts

Predicting the size of a man's vote is a pretty difficult task, and one who attempts it under usual conditions surrounding a political contest must be charged with considerable courage. It may be that all this applies to present conditions, but we cannot help going into a little detail to prove the opinion that we have expressed that Mr. McCall will be elected Governor next Tuesday.

By the following figures it will be seen that the expectation that a much larger vote will be cast this year than last, may be very properly justified by the size of the vote cast in Massachusetts in 1912 and by the fact that not for many years has the public been aroused as it is at the present time. The details of the vote in 1912 are as follows:

FOR PRESIDENT

Wilson, Democrat	174,208
Taft, Republican	155,948
Roosevelt, Progressive	142,228
Debs, Socialist	12,616
Chafin, Prohibition	2,754
Reimer, Socialist Labor	1,102
	488,856

Comparing this vote with the vote of 1914 for Governor, it will be noted that approximately 30,000 more votes were cast in 1912 than were cast last year, and by further comparison of the vote of last year with the vote that has been cast several years previously, it would seem that notwithstanding a considerable interest manifested by the voters, the 458,000 votes cast in 1914 does not represent by any means a high-water mark for an off-year vote of Massachusetts for Governor. The vote for last year was as follows:

Walsh, Democrat	210,442
McCall, Republican	198,627
Walker, Progressive	32,145
Roberts, Socialist	9,520
Evans, Prohibition	5,264
Reimer, Socialist Labor	2,205

What will the vote be next Tuesday? Good judges believe that in every county in the State a very great increase over 1914 will be noted and many believe that the large vote of 1912 will be reached. Estimating the figures on a percentage basis, it is difficult to see how there is likely to be cast next Tuesday, if it is a good day, less than 480,000 votes. How will this vote be divided?

It is doubtful if there is a single student of voting in Massachusetts who believes that the Progressive party can this year secure over 10,000 votes. "Blanks" and a distribution of the vote usually going to the Socialist and Socialist Labor parties combined are estimated to call for about 12,000 more. Governor Walsh received last year one of the largest votes ever given to a Democrat in Massachusetts, and it is doubtful if it is possible for him to increase that vote to any appreciable extent. Giving to him the same number of votes received last year we have accounted for 232,000 votes, with a balance, on a total vote of 480,000, of 248,000 votes to be divided between Mr. Shaw, the Prohibition candidate, and Mr. McCall, the Republican nominee. To defeat Governor Walsh, Mr. McCall must receive any number in excess of the 210,000 votes allowed him. Give Mr. McCall 210,000 votes and 38,000 votes are left to Mr. Shaw, or in other words, it would be necessary for Mr. Shaw to get 38,000 votes in order to defeat Governor Walsh, basing the figures for all candidates upon the most reliable estimate that can be made of the strength of each of the well known candidates throughout the Commonwealth. Here then is the story of the possibility of defeating Governor Walsh, and it is put clearly up to the vote that it is possible for Mr. Shaw to get, of which 90 per cent or more must be taken from the Republican party. No one believes that Mr. Shaw can secure anything like 38,000 votes, except those who are carried away by their enthusiasm for his campaign and their adherence to his one single issue.

Taking the figures representing the majorities in the different counties in 1914, and the expected majorities in 1915, it will again be seen that there is every promise that Mr. McCall will be elected by a plurality close to 15,000 votes. An analysis of these figures will be interesting, particularly when it is remembered that the estimated pluralities in the different counties in 1915 are much less than pluralities secured by the Republican candidate for Governor in the times when the Republican party was in its ascendancy here in Massachusetts. The possible vote as indicated by counties will be of interest as shown in the following figures of 1914 and estimates for 1915.

		Plurality 1914	Estimate 1915
Barnstable Co.	R.	850	1000
Berkshire Co.	R.	1100	1700
Bristol Co.	R.	650	2200
Dukes Co.	R.	120	200
Essex Co.	R.	1500	4500
Franklin Co.	R.	1300	1800
Hampden Co.	R.	500	2500
Hampshire Co.	R.	650	1000
Middlesex Co.	R.	4300	10000
Nantucket Co.	R.	60	100
Norfolk Co.	R.	3000	5000
Plymouth Co.	R.	40	3000
Worcester Co.	R.	200	3500
		14270	36500
Suffolk Co.	D.	25000	D. 22000
	D.	10800	R. 14500

Again let us say it is dangerous to prophesy and the above should rather be considered in the nature of a premise that seems to be clearly carried by the best available information relative to the present trend.

For the sake of good government in Massachusetts, let us hope that results next Tuesday may "prove up", and may Andover do its part.

A Plea for Temperance

The Springfield Republican comments as follows upon one of the many recent intemperate utterances of the Prohibition candidate for Governor:

"Ruin, rum and reaction" is the Prohibition candidate's summary of the depths to which the Republican party descended when it turned down prohibition. He must have had in mind the alliterative work of the Rev. Dr. Burchard which dished James G. Blaine in 1884. That sort of thing is rather dangerous. What will the harvest of Mr. Shaw's terrible three r's prove to be in 1915? He would blast Republican hopes if he could, and the Democrats ought to think a good deal of Brother Shaw—but not because they hate rum, of course. Again let it be said that there should be temperate in all things."

The best guess at present on Mr. Shaw's campaign as the Democratic stalking-horse is that he will succeed in just missing to realize his wish, publicly expressed, for "another year of Walsh". He has already succeeded, however, in giving the foundations of a great, big religious organization a very severe jolting.

A Serious Situation

Read these words, uttered by Wm. Shaw in Worcester last night.

"As a result of his attack on me last night I suppose I should say that he is mistaken and that he is a prevaricator, but I will not say that. I will say that he is a coward and a liar. And I add that on Tuesday next McCall will go down in defeat. He knows it, and his actions last night were the actions of a demagogue seeking his last refuge trying to account for his defeat."

We commend to the sober, Christian people of Andover, this picture of Mr. Shaw painted by himself. We also commend to the same citizens the following:

Theodore E. Stevenson, president of the Boston Christian Endeavor Union, a group of seventy-eight societies of Christian Endeavor, declared last night that while he has the highest regard for William Shaw, the Prohibition candidate for Governor, as a man, he hopes all his friends will vote for Mr. McCall.

"I am incensed at William Shaw's use of Christian Endeavor for political purposes," he said.

"It is useless for Mr. Shaw to deny that his supporters are not trying to drag our great order into politics. I myself have received a letter from Prohibition headquarters, asking me as president of the Boston Christian Endeavor Union to use the machinery of our organization to make votes for Mr. Shaw.

"We have a machine, just as the political parties have machinery, but it is not for political purposes, and this attempt so to use it makes me and many of my friends hot under the collar."

Mr. Stevenson also declared that Mr. Shaw is "misguidedly endangering the cause of temperance by cutting down the Republican vote."

Not to His Credit

Of all the demagogic appeals that Governor Walsh has yet made for re-election, that uttered in Lynn last night was the last word.

Pending before the public service commission, which today is a creation of his own appointments, is a request to increase fares on the Bay State Street Railway. Until that commission has reported, there is no possible way for fares to be increased, nor is there any possible ground for crediting what may or may not be done.

Under these circumstances, for the Governor of the Commonwealth to lay down such a cheap appeal as Governor Walsh did, and to set forth such foolish notions as he did, in his attempt to arouse the passions and prejudices of a great mass of people, is one of the most reprehensible pieces of political campaigning that Massachusetts has ever been treated to. The best of it is that it isn't likely that a sensible body of people will be very much affected by such methods as this.

Editorial Cinders

The Christian Civic League are planning a well worth while gathering in the town hall for Sunday evening. They plan to have the new voters in town welcomed by Mr. Alfred L. Ripley, and an address will be given on the "Privileges and Duties of United States Citizens" by Augustine X. Dooley, Esq., of Lawrence. It is an innovation on the part of the League, but one that ought to have such encouragement on the part of the people interested that it may become an annual affair.

Rev. Arthur Derbyshire of Haverhill, at a political rally in that town during the past week, made one of the most effective answers to the attempt being made by Mr. Shaw to disrupt the Republican party and re-elect Governor Walsh, that has yet been uttered in the present campaign. It was a courageous stand for a young clergyman to take, but showed the broad view which is animating many clergymen in their present attitude on the political situation in Massachusetts.

ELECTION DAY TUESDAY

Interest in State Election Keen and a Heavy Vote Expected. Polls Open at 6 A. M.

Election day next Tuesday. The polls open at 6 a.m. and may be closed at 4 o'clock. The voting this year is expected to be the heaviest cast for a long time, and many look to see all records broken. This will be due to the fact that there is an unusual amount of interest in the gubernatorial contest, with Governor David I. Walsh, Samuel W. McCall, and William Shaw in a lively three-cornered fight. The latter is a resident of Andover and it will be interesting to compare the result of the voting for these three candidates.

Mr. McCall was the candidate of the Republican party last year and was defeated by Governor David I. Walsh by only a small majority. This defeat of Mr. McCall is properly attributed to the efforts of the Progressives, led by Charles Sumner Bird, who secured over 35,000 votes, while Mr. McCall was only about 8000 votes behind Mr Walsh. The Progressive party has been practically eliminated this year and the leading progressives have gone back into the Republican ranks. Mr. Bird has come out openly for Mr. McCall and is campaigning in his interests.

Mr. McCall has made two trips to Andover since the political campaign opened, the first time as a candidate for the nomination and again last Saturday afternoon as the nominee and candidate for the governorship. He has left a very favorable impression with the voters who have been fortunate enough to hear him, and the rally last Saturday afternoon, attended by about 100 voters, gave him a cordial reception. He made a short address, calling the attention of those about him to the unfortunate condition that the country is in under Democratic rule, and urged the voters, through his election, to enter a protest against the extravagance and mismanagement that has marked the service of the Democratic party. He emphasized the fact that only the deplorable war on the other side of the ocean had saved this country from hard times and suffering. What the condition of this country might have been but for the war he did not dare to say. On State issues Mr. McCall said that the same conditions have existed and that altogether too much money was being wasted by the numberless commissions and special committees. He promised that if elected he would investigate these commissions, retain the good ones, reform those that need it, and wipe out entirely those that have proved inefficient and undesirable. By doing this he hoped to save the State considerable money.

Other speakers at the rally were Calvin Coolidge, candidate for Lieutenant-Governor, Grafton D. Cushing and Louis S. Cox. Hon. John N. Cole presided and introduced the speakers. Mr. Coolidge spoke very interestingly of State extravagance under Democratic rule and urged the voters to repudiate this extravagance by electing a Republican ticket from top to bottom.

Mr. Cushing urged a return to Republican principles in state and national affairs and hoped that Mr. McCall would get a substantial majority in the election next Tuesday.

Mr. Cox in his address criticized his opponent, Mr. Sullivan, for his efforts to fool the voters into thinking that the office of District Attorney should be kept out of politics. Mr. Cox argued that every citizen has a right to aspire for any office and that by the voters' choice can the best man win. He pleaded his cause in his usual pleasing manner and was given a generous applause at its close.

There is a contest for the position of Representative to the General Court, between Nesbit G. Gleason, Republican, William Cronin, Democrat, and Thomas E. Rhodes, Independent. For the office of District Attorney there is a lively contest being waged between the present incumbent, Michael A. Sullivan, and Louis S. Cox of Lawrence. Both men are working strenuously for the position and a close fight is expected.

There are other things besides the election of State, County and local officers which are to be voted on and which have become important issues during the preliminary campaign. One of these questions is that relating to "Votes for Women". The suffrage movement has attracted considerable attention in this State and some strenuous campaigning has been going on for some time. The suffragists have given considerable time and money to the cause and they are extremely hopeful of victory. On the other hand, the antis have been just as busy and are doing all in their power to prevent their "sisters" from obtaining the ballot. The outcome of this contest is second in interest only to that of the governorship fight.

The full text of the articles which will be found at the bottom of the ballot and which should be carefully studied by each voter before going to the polls follow:

Acceptance of Chap. 129, Resolves of 1915, entitled "Resolves to provide for submitting to the people the article of amendment of the constitution empowering the general court to authorize the taking of land to relieve congestion of population and to provide homes for citizens."

Acceptance of Chap. 130, Resolves of 1915, entitled "Resolves to provide for submitting to the people the article of amendment of the constitution striking the word 'male' from the qualification of voters."

Acceptance of Chap. 140, Resolves of 1915, entitled "Resolves to provide for submitting to the people the article of amendment of the constitution relative to the authority of the general court to impose taxes."

Question of Public Policy under Chap. 819, Acts of 1913. "Shall the Representative from this district be instructed to support the initiative and referendum, so as to give the voters the power to accept or reject at the polls measures that have been proposed by petition, or to reject at the polls, upon petition, measures that have been passed by the General Court."

Men's Club to Observe Tenth Anniversary

Tuesday evening the Men's Club of the Free church held an adjourned business meeting and voted to observe its tenth anniversary which occurs next February. The entertainment committee was given full power to make the necessary arrangements for a suitable celebration.

The final plans were made for the reception of Senator John W. Weeks, who addresses the club on Tuesday evening, November 9, his subject being "The Merchant Marine." The meeting will be held in the church auditorium and a general invitation to the men of the town, irrespective of church or club affiliations is cordially extended. There will be organ selections by Edwin G. Booth and also vocal solos. The president, C. B. Baldwin, will appoint a reception committee:

The chairmen of the various committees on club work reported, and Fred Otis of the Boys' Work committee announced that a special meeting, subject to the sanction of the club, would be held early in the year, with an address possibly by Rev. W. G. Puddefoot. The committee on Town Affairs reported that they were in touch with subjects of interest to the welfare of the community. Several new members were admitted, and James Gillespie and Fred E. Otis were added to the executive committee. The ladies will be invited to attend the December meeting, at which Capt. A. G. Reynolds of the Boston Elevated will speak on "Fifty Years of Railroading."

The matter of a Federation of Men's Clubs in town was discussed but no definite action was taken. The club is in a flourishing condition and the interest is keener than ever before.

Music Notice

At the pre-vesper Bach recital in the chapel of Phillips Academy on Sunday afternoon at 5 o'clock, Mr. Pfatteicher will play two choral preludes on "Vater unser im Himmelreich," the second movement of the second organ sonata, and the prelude and fugue in C minor. The choral society will meet on Tuesday night at 8 o'clock in the Archaeology building. Any person playing an orchestral instrument, who would like to join the choral society orchestra, is requested to confer with Mr. Pfatteicher.

PROHIBITION RALLY

Large Audience in Town Hall on Monday Evening Hear Prohibition Discussed. Mr. Shaw Speaks.

The Prohibition rally held in the town hall on Monday evening, when William Shaw of Ballardvale, the party's candidate for Governor, was the main speaker of the evening, brought out a large number of voters. There were also several ladies present, those who could not find seats in the gallery being given seats on the main floor.

Mr. Shaw was escorted from the Boston and Maine station by the Ballardvale Drum Corps. He held a short informal reception before the rally opened and the Drum Corps rendered several selections. The rally was presided over by Rev. William E. Lombard of the Baptist church, and prayer was offered by Rev. A. H. Fuller, pastor of the church in Ballardvale to which Mr. Shaw belongs.

The Prohibition Quartet then sang some of the campaign songs which greatly pleased the audience. The songs were of a rag-time nature, with words suitable for Prohibition campaigning. One of the songs, which the leader announced was Mr. Shaw's favorite, was entitled "Chew the Rag," a significant line announcing that

"Senator Lodge didn't dare to chew the rag and Weeks did it for him."

The first speaker of the evening was Arthur J. Davis, Superintendent of the Massachusetts Anti-Saloon League. Mr. Davis occupied his allotted time in presenting the cause of temperance and in urging the voters to cast their ballots for Mr. Shaw as a rebuke to the two great parties for not adopting a prohibition plank in their platforms. He spoke of the fights which the Anti-Saloon League has occasionally had with the leaders and officers of the two great parties and of the help that is promised if Mr. Shaw's election can be brought about.

Mr. Shaw followed Mr. Davis, and for an hour he poured forth in his fluent and well-known manner the hot shot which has featured his campaign throughout the State. He spared neither the Republican nor Democratic party, but the latter organization came in for more bouquets than did the former. He criticized the Republican leaders for not endorsing the prohibition plank which he and his colleagues had urged prior to the convention, and said that in an interview with Mr. McCall he threatened political annihilation for him and his party should he refuse to have the plank injected.

In opening his address Mr. Shaw said he was glad to see so many familiar faces in the hall and to see such enthusiasm as was shown for prohibition. He said that it reminded him of a town meeting except that instead of having a seat on the main floor, as was his usual custom, he was on the platform. He said that his family had pleaded with him not to go into politics but that his conscience urged him to, and he was now making a fight for purity for the homes, the wives and the children.

Mr. Shaw quoted an editorial from the Townsman in which, he claimed, the editor had urged the Republicans to stand by the ticket, as a vote for him was half a vote for Governor Walsh. He said he wished to impress on the voters that a vote for him meant that the one who cast it was not afraid to stand by what he thought was for the best interests of the community. Mr. Shaw declared that he was not in league with the Democrats to help re-elect Governor Walsh at the expense of Mr. McCall, but was in the fight solely as an enemy of the liquor traffic and this was the one issue alone on which he was directing the fight. He declared that the two leading parties were allied with the liquor interests and hoped that all voters would remember this when they went to the polls. He continued by saying that Governor Walsh and Mr. McCall had gone through the State discussing the milk question but never saying a word about the liquor question. He claimed that while talking to the farmers they would promise a larger revenue for their goods, and when in the city talking to the dealers they would insist that milk was costing them too much. This, he said, was done to catch the farmers' vote in one instance and the dealers' vote in the other. He jokingly said that he had heard so much about milk that whenever it appeared on his breakfast table it almost made him sick.

Continuing he said that the candidates of the two big parties shy at the word "whiskey" and seem not to be aware that it is the great corruptor of morals in the State.

"The citizens of Massachusetts have no choice between the dominant parties with reference to their attitude toward the legalized liquor traffic. The Republican party, by tradition and personnel, ought to stand for childhood, the home and the school, against the saloon. It has had the power almost without interruption for fifty years and has permitted the liquor traffic to intrench itself in Massachusetts more firmly than in any other State in the Union. It has refused us the privilege of the referendum which made possible the victory of prohibition in eleven of our sister States during the past twelve months. It has compelled us to wage this campaign on political lines in order to register our protest against the continued partnership of Massachusetts in the liquor traffic, and I am determined to use every influence in my power to secure the recognition of the righteous principle of prohibition in our State."

Mr. Shaw severely criticized Mr. Bird and other Progressives for their return to the Republican ranks. Salt was used, he said, on Mr. Bird's tail to fetch him back, and after many attempts he was finally landed. He insisted that no such consideration would be shown the Prohibitionists until it was proven that they were big enough to lick the two big parties. He declared that some men would vote for the devil if he bore the party banner.

Mr. Shaw declared with much vehemence that he did not want Dave Walsh's job, as he already had a better one, but that he was in the fight to bring the Republican party to its knees so that in the future those favoring prohibition would be recognized in the party's councils. He claimed that he would much rather have one more year of Governor Walsh than three years of Mr. McCall and the rum-controlled Republican party. While both were excellent gentlemen, he said that those behind the party represented the rum element and therefore their hands were tied.

In closing his address Mr. Shaw gave several incidents where liquor had ruined homes and where in several cases whiskey had made men murderers. The rally closed with a selection by the Drum Corps.

Abbot Academy Notes

The school enjoyed very much last Sunday a short visit from Mr. and Mrs. Frederic Palmer. Mr. Palmer spoke at the service in Davis Hall on Sunday evening. After his talk there was a short organ recital by Mr. Ashton.

On Tuesday evening a very clever vaudeville entertainment was given in Davis Hall for the benefit of the Athletic Association, and on Wednesday the Seniors had a picnic supper at Haggett's Pond.

The trustees have agreed that the house on the corner of School and Abbot streets, now occupied by Mrs. Tyer and Mrs. Baldwin, shall be known as the Chandler house, for Mrs. Hermon P. Chandler, Phoebe Ballard, who was a day-scholar at Abbot Academy in its opening year, 1829, and who lived it this house for many years. It was built by Mr. Chandler about 1860, and was often open to Abbot Academy girls, when the school buildings were full, ot in vacations for such girls as could nor go to their homes. Mrs. Chandler was always a loyal friend of the school, gave generously to the building of Draper Hall, and at her death left a bequest of $5000 for the Building Fund. It seems appropriate, therefore, that the house should hereafter be called the Chandler house.

Close of the Shakespeare Festival

The Shakespeare Festival came to a close on last Saturday evening after three successful days of perfect weather, large attendance, and exceptionally satisfactory patronage of the tables and booths. The members of Christ church, whose undertaking brought to Andover one of the most spectacular and brilliant affairs ever seen here, should feel amply repaid for their efforts, as a goodly sum of money was realized; just how much is not known yet, as there are still a few accounts to receive attention by the officials.

The committee that conducted the festival had spared no pains or effort to give to Andover something novel in the way of entertainment, as well as to raise a large amount of money for church work. The executive committee, and especially Mrs. Baldwin, are deserving of much praise for the very efficient service which they rendered. The executive committee was composed of Mrs. Baldwin, chairman; Mrs. Thomson, secretary; Mrs. Walker, Mr. Colquhoun, Mr. Hayes, treasurer; and H. Winthrop Peirce. To the efficient pianist, Mrs. Marjorie Spark, whose playing was enjoyable, credit is also due.

In summing up the festival from all points of view, it was a big success. Socially it proved all that could be expected, for it brought together people of all denominations who mingled joyfully together with the same purpose of aiding the members of Christ church to raise a substantial sum; intellectually it was a fine thing for the town, for the decorations and the entertainments gave all who visited the hall a distinct and historically correct representation of 16th and 17th century life; financially the festival was a "howling" success, as the amount made, although not accurately settled, is known to have been all and more than expected.

comprises over nine acres suitable for farming purposes, and the buildings are a dwelling, barn and out-buildings.

Charles G. and Bertel G. Willard have sold to Harriett W. Holmes a lot of land on Bartlet street opposite the John Dove school.

Maurice J. Curran has bought the building site at the corner of Atlantic avenue and Ocean avenue, Phillips Beach, of Henry B. Sprague of that place. The lot contains 64,000 square feet, with a frontage of 166 feet on the ocean side of Atlantic avenue and 400 feet on Ocean avenue. Plans are in preparation for a mansion and garage to be completed for next summer. The estate of Andrew W. Preston, president of the United Fruit Company, and of Arthur F. Estabrook, president of Estabrook & Co., bankers, are in the immediate vicinity.

Perhaps, as a teacher of the violin, Mr. Joseph Emile Daudelin is best known, having devoted his time mostly to that profession since his return from abroad, where as a student of the violin he was for several years connected with the world-renowned Paris Conservatoire, and under the supervision of Jules Garcin and Henri Leonard, head of the celebrated French School of Violinists. The claim of the advocates of this famous system of violin playing, that it is the finest in the world, seems to have been proven through the public demonstrations of such unrivalled exponents as Vieuxtemps, Wieniawski and the brilliant meteoric Sarasate, who has repeatedly appeared in concert in this country. Under the influence and prestige just cited have Mr. Daudelin's talents been developed, and in bringing them into the American field of instruction, places within the power of our people to secure advantages heretofore difficult to obtain without going abroad for them.—The Folio.

For terms call Saturday at the Briggs-Allen School, Arco Building, or write to Joseph Emile Daudelin, Steinert Hall, Boston.

WEST PARISH

Mrs. Downing is slowly recovering from her recent illness.

Remember the entertainment in the Bailey schoolhouse tonight.

The Ladies' Aid Society will meet with Mrs. Granville Cutler Thursday, November 4.

Rev. Newman Matthews has returned home after attending the National Council at New Haven.

Miss Davis, who has been visiting with Mrs. Herbert Merrick, Lowell street, has returned to her home in Campello.

The Senior class of the Punchard High School attended a husking-bee at the home of John Noyes on Lovejoy road on Wednesday evening.

E. W. Boutwell has arrived at San Francisco and is attending the Exposition. He will attend the National Grange which meets in that city this year.

Mrs. Edward F. Abbott spent Sunday with her brother, George O Russell of Wakefield. Mrs Abbott attended church with her brother and had the pleasure of listening to a sermon by an old friend, Rev. Mr. Merrill, who used to live on a farm in the West Parish.

A number of our farmers have lost quite heavily by a thief or thieves stealing their vegetables and fruit. The latest victim is Mr. Sanders at West Andover depot. Mr. Sanders teaches German in Lawrence and during the absence of himself and wife the thief forced an entrance through a skylight and got off with about ten bushels of potatoes.

Are you coming to the Church Fair, November 19? The ladies have worked hard to make this fair a success, and they solicit your help. Come with me through the church vestry and I will show you what we have. First we find the table of fancy articles, and you will find Mrs. Paddock, Mrs. Merrick, Miss Alice Boutwell, and Mrs. F. K. Hardy, with smiling faces to wait on you. Christmas is coming, and you can buy pretty gifts here. But here we are at the fancy aprons, and Mrs. Burtt and Mrs. Huggins are eager to wait on you. Aprons with ruffles and some without; aprons that are all pocket and some without any. My! Look at the work-aprons; here are Mrs. Noyes, Mrs. Gardner, Mrs. R. Ward, just waiting to show you the merits of these aprons. "Sweets for the sweet." Here is the candy table, and Mrs. Watson, Miss Putnam, Bernice Boutwell and Laura Whitten will be very sweet indeed if you buy some. I wonder what this bevy of young girls are doing and who are they? Why, they are Mrs. Matthews' Sunday School class. They have a Larkin booth, and as you must not disappoint these girls you will surely purchase something. Some say "Vegetables will be scarce and high in price this winter". Now is your chance. The good farmers of the Parish have generously donated these vegetables and Mr. Corliss and Winthrop Boutwell are eager to sell them. Who is this little lady with the grab-bag? Let me introduce you to Mrs. Winthrop Boutwell. I told you last week how hard she worked to raise money to buy these mysterious articles. No, you are not too old to "grab" If you get a toy, keep it until Christmas and gladden some poor kid's heart with it. And the supper? The committee are Mrs. G Cutler (chairman), Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Boutwell, Mrs. E. W. Boutwell, Mrs. C. H. Newton and Mr. Clarke. "Nuf sed." In the dining-room you will be met by a number of eager young girls, each one ready to wait on you. When the inner man is satisfied, you will find our treasurer, Miss Angie Burtt, at the entrance and you can pay her. Forget the date? No indeed. Read the Townsman carefully every week and you will see the date.

Grange News

Tuesday night was observed as visitors' night in the Grange Hall, and 175 Grangers were present. After the regular meeting, North Andover Grange presented the four-scene play, "How the Story Grew." Each one acted his part well and it was much enjoyed by all present. The eighty visitors present came from North Andover, Methuen, West Boxford, and Wilmington. After the play a real Grange supper was enjoyed.

The next Grange meeting, November 9, will be election of officers. Every member is requested to be present.

Remember the nights of the Grange Fair, November 11 and 12. We will keep you guessing a week, but be sure and look over the Grange News in the Townsman next week, and you will see a list of some of the good things you will find at the fair.

Hundreds of small villages, away from main-travelled roads, are readily accessible to salesmen who know how inexpensive and how easy it is to telephone these places from convenient junction points.

Sometimes it is impossible to "make" all these places each trip, or personally to visit each customer oftener than once a year.

BOSTON THEATRES

WILBUR

It is unnecessary more than to indicate the action of the two plays, Bernard's Shaw's "Androcles and the Lion" and Anatole France's "The Man Who Married a Dumb Wife", which will be presented at Yc Wilbur theatre for the second week beginning Monday, November 1.

Mr. France settles the case of a man possessed of a beautiful wife, who has all the normal faculties save that of speech. Unaware of his blessings, the husband calls in three practitioners, who set the tongue free to speak. And such a gabbing as ensues! Again the doctors are summoned, and this time they administer a powder which deprives the frantic husband of his hearing. Whereupon the husband, unable to hear, is happy, but the wife goes mad.

The plot of Mr. Shaw's play is simple. Androcles is seen at the outset near a jungle, beset by an unreasonable wife, whom he is convoying on a hypothetical journey. As a result of the good office rendered to a lion, which obstructs their path, man and beast go off as bosom friends, deserting the hysterical wife. The scene shifts to Rome, where the Christian prisoners, Androcles among them, are being driven in as food for wild beasts in the arena. The lion, of course, requires but one sniff to recognize his old friend. The two are then in absolute control, emperor and the rest of the court fleeing before them. It is only after some of Androcles' meekness has been imparted to the lion that order is restored and an arrangement devised which satisfies them all.

SHUBERT

The all-star restoration of "Trilby" has proved a delight at the Shubert. The play was first acted in Boston in 1895. It is amazing how it appeals to the popular taste just as grippingly as then. Physically, temperamentally and dramatically, the young English actress, Phyllis Neilson-Terry, is Trilby as she might have stepped from the printed pages of the novel.

The brief revival of "Trilby" is a joy to young and old. It is to the rising generation of amusement seekers a graphic object lesson in the value and beauty of the spoken drama, when interpreted by splendid players. The "Trilby" engagement must positively close Saturday night, November 6. Matinees Wednesday and Saturday.

OPERA HOUSE

"The most wonderful play in America in the world's most gorgeous playhouse," is the way the advertisements announce "Experience" at the Boston Opera House. Many people have seen the play several times, and it is safe to say that many more who have already seen it, will take advantage of this wonderful opportunity to also see the beautiful and superb Boston Opera House, which, when the golden dome is fully lighted, is almost a parallel for the wonderful Tower of Jewels at the San Francisco Exposition.

The engagement positively closes Saturday night, November 13, when "Experience" says good-bye to Boston.

The announcement of the engagement of Mme. O. Fremstad, the foremost dramatic soprano in this country; Eduardo Ferrari-Fontana, one of the first tenors in the operatic world, and George Baklanoff, the famous Russian baritone, with the Opera Company at the Boston Opera House, will give Boston the distinction this year of presenting the most brilliant season of grand opera ever known in this country. The complete repertory for the first week of the opera season, which begins November 15 and extends through four weeks, is now announced for the first time, as follows:

Monday and Thursday evenings—"The Dumb Girl of Portici" with Zenatello, Felice Lyne, Lazzaro, Michailoff, and Mlle. Pavlowa and her entire company.

Tuesday evening—"L'Amore dei tre Re" (The Love of the Three Kings), with Ferrari-Fontana, Luisa Villani, Baklanoff, Mardones, Elvira Leveroni; followed by "Elysian Fields" ballet from Gluck's "Orfeo", by Mlle. Pavlowa and the whole company.

Wednesday evening and Saturday matinee—"Madam Butterfly", with Mme. Tamaki Miura, the Japanese prima donna; followed by "Snowflakes" from Tschaikowsky's "Nutcracker" ballet, by Mlle. Pavlowa and company.

Friday evening—"Carmen", with Maria Gay, Riccardo Martin, Baklanoff, Jose Mardones and the complete ballet by Mlle. Pavlowa and the Russian Imperial Ballet.

HOLLIS STREET

At the Hollis Street theatre on November 1, Miss Elsie Ferguson, under the direction of Charles Frohman and Klaw and Erlanger, will begin a limited engagement in "Outcast", a play in four acts by Hubert Henry Davies.

The story of "Outcast" is briefly as follows: Geoffrey Sherwood, a well-to-do and easy-going type of young Englishman, has been jilted by Valentine, a woman of fashion, who elects to make a more brilliant match. Geoffrey turns to drugs and liquor for consolation and is rapidly going to the dogs, when by chance he meets a girl of the streets, named Miriam. A quick sympathy and understanding develops between the two, and in the end the love of Miriam for Geoffrey redeems both the man and the woman. The scenes of the four acts are laid in London at the present day.

Miss Ferguson is supported by an exceptionally capable company, including David Powell, J. Woodalr Birde, Warburton Gamble, Leslie Palmer, Gillian Scaife, Nell Compton and Angela Lee Lewes.

Matinees will be given Wednesday and Saturday.

PLYMOUTH

"Back Home" begins its fourth week at the Plymouth theatre next Monday. In every respect "Back Home" is an American play with all the thrilling fervor of strenuous American life, and even though the locale is placed in a small country city the people are not of the brand so long recognized as "stage rurals". The matinees at this theatre are on Thursdays and Saturdays. The management assures their out-of-town patrons that mail orders will receive prompt and careful attention.

PARK SQUARE

The tenth week of "Twin Beds" begins next Monday. The two newlyweds, Harry Hawkins and Blanche—the latter the friendly soul who brings on all the trouble—are deliciously human in all the coils of disaster into which they are caught. Two other newlyweds, the one a model of a husband, the other a suspicious wife, and last but by no means least, Norah, a gem of a maid with a mania for strict obedience, make up the company whose vicissitudes Mr. Field and Miss Mayo have made so overwhelmingly amusing.

MODERN THEATRE

The attraction at the beautiful Modern theatre for the week of November 1 will be that wonderful emotional actress of the screen, Theda Bara, in the William Fox production of Carmen. It breathes the true spirit of ancient, picturesque Spain, for the atmosphere has been duplicated most perfectly, entire cities being built, with the castles, palaces, catneurals, plazas, bull-ring, and employing the real Andalusian gypsies besides the hosts of other types indigenous to the country.

Irving Cobb on Photo-Plays

Irvin Cobb has been much in the news of late during his recent visit to Boston where he has been much interviewed by the gentlemen of the press. At a reception given to him at the Boston Press Club he was received by Mayor Curley and offered the freedom of the city. Among other questions he was asked what he thought of the moving pictures.

"They are the most potent factor for good in the present age," he answered.

War Pictures at Tremont Temple

The most remarkable moving pictures of the European war yet shown are being exhibited at Tremont Temple, Boston. They are the famous pictures taken on the German battlefields by Edwin F. Weigle, of the Chicago Tribune, and what with Mr. Weigle's fearlessness in getting as near as possible to the actual firing line, and the use of his telephoto lens by which he could picture many scenes of conflict not actually accessible to him, the results of his efforts form a marvelously graphic picture of the war as it is really being fought. Mr. Weigle visited the battlefronts in the West, the East and the South.

The engagement at the Tremont Temple is limited to one week more only, the performance running continuously from 11 a.m. to 11 p.m. It takes an hour and a half to show the six remarkable reels and the exhibition is made more attractive with orchestra, organ and lecturer. During the engagement the price for all seats will be 25 cents.

"The Garden of Allah" at the Colonial Theatre, Lawrence

"The Garden of Allah", the most wonderful dramatic success known to America, will be the attraction at the Colonial theatre, Lawrence, on Friday and Saturday, November 12 and 13, with matinee Saturday.

This big, romantic play, which is a dramatization of the novel of the same name by Robert Hichens and Mary Anderson de Navarro, is the superlative effort of one of America's greatest producing films—the Liebler Company. Three separate trips were made to Morocco to obtain correct environment and atmosphere for this drama. A troupe of Arabs from the desert, including a Mohammedan priest, several aides to Rasula, the famous bandit, and other noted figures of the desert, were brought over to this country. Mme. Faddma, a famous dancer of the Ouled Nailes tribe of Arabs, was also imported, together with camels, horses, donkeys, goats, etc. This immense production requires four carloads of scenery and effects and nearly 100 people.

Seats go on sale Monday, November 8. Orders by mail will receive prompt attention.

Get Ready for the Deluge

What will happen when the war in Europe is over? Then the floods will come upon us. Then we will learn the full effect of Free-Trade upon our industries as we have never learned it before. It is against that flood that we need to protect ourselves. America does not want to be swamped after the fighting is over. There is coming an industrial competition and struggle between the great manufacturing and producing nations such as we have never known before. All things will be made over and men will go to work to capture the markets of the world as they have never done before. Next year is the time to put our house in political order for the new era that is coming.—Cedar Rapids (Ia.) Republican.

GENERAL NEWS EVENTS

Churches of All Denominations In Eastern Massachusetts to Send Delegates to Boston Nov. 14-17—Increased Efficiency of Missionary Work at Home and Abroad Aim of Convention

The Boston Laymen's convention which will call together more than 3000 laymen of various church denominations will be held at Tremont Temple, Boston, beginning Nov. 14 and continuing through Nov. 17.

The convention is called to instill greater interest in home and foreign missions, to secure the participation of a greater number of men in active church life and work and to emphasize the adequacy of the gospel to meet modern social conditions.

The convention in Boston will be but one of seventy-five such conventions to be held in as many cities of the country during the coming months, all culminating in a National Missionary convention at Washington next April.

Most efficient organization committees are in charge of the plans for the Boston convention. Every denomination to be represented has already held a meeting of prominent laymen and appointed committees to see that the convention is well attended. The Congregationalists have pledged 1000 delegates, the Baptists 1000 and the Methodists and Episcopalians are working to secure their proportionate share of the representation.

Congressman Frederick W. Dallinger of Cambridge is chairman of the general executive committee, while Charles C. Merrill, Ford Building, Boston, is executive secretary, and on the committee are many prominent and influential business men.

The convention will open Sunday morning, Nov. 14, with sermons by pastors and visiting speakers in all the churches of Greater Boston. In the afternoon will be a men's meeting in Tremont Temple and in the evening union services at various churches.

Monday, Nov. 15, the day opens with a union ministers' meeting in the Park street Church in co-operation with the Evangelical Alliance. The afternoon will be given up to the subject "How to Reach the New Americans in This Territory" with the report of the immigrant survey committee. In the evening will be addresses on "What Must America Do Under New World Conditions?" and "The Sort of Christianity Needed to Conquer the World."

Tuesday, Nov. 16, the subjects of the morning session will be "The Missionary Progress of Recent Years and Its Explanation," and "The Relation of Prayer and Bible Study to Efficient Christian Service." "Where to Begin in Making the Church More Aggressive and Productive" will be the afternoon topic. Addresses on "The Two Americas," "Recent War Experiences in Turkey" and "The Disintegration of Mohammedanism" will be heard in the evening.

The final day, Wednesday, Nov. 17, will open with addresses on the subjects "Is Victorious Christian Life Possible and Obligatory?" and "Adequacy of the Gospel to Meet Modern Social Conditions." Denominational meetings will take up the afternoon and in the evening will be addresses on "War and Missions" and "Our Possibilities in Christ."

The list of speakers to be heard includes some of the foremost Christian workers of the country in the various denominations. The general leader will be J. Campbell White, president of Wooster, Ohio, university, for nine years general secretary of the Laymen's Missionary movement. The associate leader is Dr. Fred B. Fisher of New York, general secretary of the Laymen's Missionary Movement of the Methodist Episcopal church. Other speakers will be Colonel Elijah W. Halford of New York city; Charles G. Trumbull, editor of Sunday School Times; Bishop Lucien L. Kinsolving of South America, of the Episcopal church; Rev. James McNaughton, Congregational missionary to Turkey; Dr. Rudolph B. Teusler, Episcopal missionary to Japan; Dr. Herbert S. Johnson of Boston; Dr. Arthur J. Brown, secretary of the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions; Dr. Charles E. Burton, general secretary, Congregational Home Missionary Society of New York; Dr. James L. Barton, foreign secretary of the American board and Dr. John M. Moore, executive secretary of the Baptist United Missionary campaign.

As the purpose of the convention is to bring men of all churches together and arouse, inform and enlist them for the whole task of the church, so the work of the convention will not close with the four days' sessions. It is expected the influence of the convention will be such that each individual church will feel its effects in invigorating growth and that permanent and practical assistance in solving great moral and practical questions of the day will follow.

A CLEAR CUT ISSUE

SAMUEL W. McCALL

"You have this day adopted a forward-looking platform which meets my full approval and upon which I squarely stand. We welcome the cooperation of that splendid body of men who have as leaders, Charles Sumner Bird and Joseph Walker. The men who think alike upon the great questions of government will, I believe, vote alike this year, and with no side issues, we shall triumphantly carry the election in November. Such a result will be big with fate to the prosperity of our commonwealth."—In his speech of acceptance of the nomination for governor at the Republican state convention, Tremont Temple, Boston, Oct. 2, 1915.

CHARLES SUMNER BIRD

"The issue is unmistakable. On Nov. 2, the voter must decide whether New England industries, Massachusetts workmen and workwomen are willing to risk four more years of Democratic attack upon business, four more years of tariff tinkering and uncertainty. It is as I see it vital that the Democratic national administration's attitude toward New England interests should be condemned in the most emphatic fashion at the coming election."—In a speech at Attleboro, Oct. 22, 1915.

U. S. SENATOR HENRY CABOT LODGE

"The choice at the coming election lies between the Republican and Democratic parties. There can be no other. We must decide which one of these two parties the conditions of the times and the safety and welfare of the United States alike demand. The traditions, the general principals and the broad policies of the Republican party have always commanded the support of the people of Massachusetts. Massachusetts is now as she always has been, a Republican state. I cannot believe that in the presence of the grave, the overmastering issues of the present time, any Republicans will be found who will vote on side issues in such a way as to secure the victory of that party which is most hostile to the reforms they have at heart."—In a letter addressed to Samuel W. McCall, Oct. 23, 1915.

ministration so notorious. He said that the consular service had suffered greatly owing to the fact that incompetents had been placed in important posts regardless of their familiarity either with the language or duties of the office. Another feature of misgovernment was the attitude of the war department in closing the Watertown arsenal and parts of the Charlestown navy yard when the country is clamoring for preparedness and when the manufacture of munitions of war should be rushed with all speed. Speaking of the Mexican situation Mr. Dallinger said that it would have been much better for our government to have done nothing than to have been made to look foolish before the eyes of the world.

In closing, Mr. Dallinger urged the voters to stand by Mr. McCall and the entire Republican ticket, as with a return to power it would mean a return to better times with a protective tariff, a merchant marine, preparedness, and all things to reconstruct the nation.

The next speaker of the evening was Hon. John Jacob Rogers of Lowell. He opened his remarks by saying that he did not like to strike a note of discord in the campaign, as everyone, Democrats as well as Republicans, were friends, live the same, are of the same moral character, and have the same desire to obtain the best that their respective parties can offer. He said that the Democratic party was a pretty good party but it frequently wandered from the straight and narrow path. Mr. Rogers continuing said that there were many vital issues in the conduct of the administration that needed attention, and that he would touch on a few of those. He exposed, in his able manner, the working of the treasury department, where the working surplus fund turned over by the Republicans, amounting to $150,000,000, was reduced to $80,000,000, and by juggling figures over night it was raised to $168,000,000. He then spoke of the extravagance of the administration and of the efforts of the southern voters to force the New England manufacturers to come to their terms or go out of business.

Mr. Rogers also spoke of the working of the tariff by which this country was seriously affected at the present time. He quoted an interesting incident in which Secretary of Commerce Redfield was endeavoring to encourage business in Switzerland rather than to assist the New England manufacturers of the same goods. He said he mentioned these incidents just to show up the incompetence of the officials in Washington and urged the voters to vote for Republican officials at every opportunity.

In closing, Mr. Rogers paid a very high tribute to the worth of Mr. McCall. He said that he had been elected to Congress shortly after Mr. McCall had left that body, but the impression that the latter had left on the great body at Washington was one of which any great man might well be proud. He quoted an incident in which two of his colleagues, a Democrat and a Republican, had agreed that the speeches made by Mr. McCall were among the best of thousands made before the members of Congress. Mr. Rogers closed his remarks by appealing to all the voters to cast their votes for Mr. McCall and the entire Republican ticket.

Hon. John N. Cole then spoke for a few minutes on the political situation in this State. He touched particularly on the candidacy of Mr. Shaw for the Prohibition party and hoped that the local voters would not be led by sentiment but would give a hearty endorsement to the Republican candidate.

Mr. Cole spoke of the work that the Republican party had done for the temperance cause in Massachusetts, and said that from statistics of men who had studied the question from every angle, it was found that Massachusetts today stands far ahead of any other State in the Union, whether prohibition or license prevails, in actual temperance legislation enacted. Continuing, Mr. Cole said that from statistics carefully compiled it was found that there was less crime and vice in licensed Massachusetts than in many of the prohibition States.

Mr. Cole closed with an appeal for the Republican Town Committee to the voters to cast their ballots marked for every Republican from top to bottom.

The last speaker of the evening was Hon. Louis S. Cox of Lawrence, Republican candidate for District Attorney. He gave an interesting account of the pleas which his opponent was presenting to his audiences, requesting support for various reasons which had no bearing on the case whatever. He urged the voters not to be misled by the attempts to befog the issue and to look the matter squarely in the face and answer at the polls next Tuesday.

The rally closed with an appeal to the voters to be sure to cast a full Republican vote on Tuesday.

BALLARDVALE

There will be election of officers and other business of importance at the meeting of Ballardvale lodge, 105, this evening.

The Christian Endeavor and Epworth League are both planning on having Hallowe'en parties. They promise to be exceptionally good this year.

There was a fair attendance Wednesday evening at the first supper of the season of the Congregational Ladies' Aid Society held in the church vestry. After a bounteous supper, games and a good social hour followed and were enjoyed by all.

Eight of the young friends of Mrs. George P. Byington tendered her a surprise party at her home on High street last Saturday afternoon, the occasion being her 79th birthday. The following young people were present: Margaret Richardson, Alice Loomer, Barbara Loomer, Catherine Clemons and Arlene Miller; Russell Richardson, Melvin Haynes and Gardner Shaw. Mrs. Byington received many congratulations and tokens of esteem from her friends and neighbors. She also received many cards commemorating the occasion.

Notice to Property Owners

You are hereby required on or before Dec. 1, 1915, to destroy the gypsy and brown tail moths on your property in this town.

This notification is in accordance with Chapter 381, Acts of 1905, as amended by Chapter 268, Acts of 1906, which requires cities and towns to destroy the eggs, caterpillars, pupae and nests of the gypsy and brown tail moths under heavy penalty for failure to comply with the provisions of the law.

If a property owner fails to destroy such eggs caterpillars, pupae and nests then the city or town is required to destroy the same, and the cost of the work, in whole or in part, according to the value of the land, is assessed upon and becomes a lien on the land. (See Section 6, Chapter 381, on reverse.)

The selectmen ask owners and tenants to cooperate with the town in its work on highways and other public grounds by doing effective work on their premises. Citizens who have cleaned their premises of the moths, but find their trees endangered by the neglect of owners of adjoining estates should make complaint to the selectmen. The infestation of a residential neighborhood by the neglect of a few will not be tolerated.

The eggs of the gypsy moth should be destroyed at once with creosote. They should never be scraped off the object on which they are laid. Careful search should be made for gypsy moth egg clusters, not only on trees but also on house walls, stone walls, fences and in rubbish heaps, etc. Trees in which cavities occur and which it is not desirable to cut should have the cavities tinned or cemented. This is important. The present and future cost of combating this insect can be greatly reduced by cutting and burning worthless brush, hollow trees, etc. A few trees well cared for are more valuable to the property owner and the community than a large number of neglected trees.

The nests of the brown tail moth should be cut from the trees, carefully collected and burned in a stove or furnace.

Full instructions as to best methods of work against the moths may be obtained from the Local Superintendent, J. H. Playdon, Lowell Street, or from the State Forester, Room 1009, 6 Beacon Street, Boston, Mass.

Work done by contractors should be inspected and approved by the Local Superintendent before payment for the same is made.

Small Boy Nearly Drowned

The small son of Vaughn S. Blanchard, assistant physical director at Phillips Academy, came very near being drown d Tuesday morning. The child was playing around his home on Salem street, and, as he was passing over a cesspool, the boards gave way and let the child down into the very unpleasant place. His frightened screams attracted Albert E. Collings, the butcher, who rescued him.

A husking-bee was enjoyed by the members of the Senior class of Punchard School, Wednesday evening, at the home of John Noyes on Lovejoy road. The trip home was made in a hay-wagon.
